

THE GAZETTE.

FRIDAY EVENING, MARCH 13.

A TALE OF VENGEANCE.—In 1861 a numerous family of the name of Porter was murdered at Redwood, Minnesota, by the Indians. Of this family, consisting of parents, brothers and sisters and more distant relatives, but one survivor was left—a son. He took a solemn oath of vengeance against the Indians. How he has kept it, is thus told by the "Dubuque Times": "In six years young Porter has, alone, and with the assistance of nothing but his trusty rifle, sent to the happy hunting grounds the souls of one hundred and eighty Indians. He carries with him a piece of cane broke, about twelve inches in length, and whenever he kills an Indian, he makes a notch in this. One hundred and eighty notches are now to be counted on the piece of cane alluded to, the last one being cut on Christmas, 1866. Surely young Porter has been an avenging Nemesis on the footstools of those who slaughtered his kindred. The Indians killed embrace representatives from nearly every tribe on the plains. By night and by day he has followed them, through the trackless forests, over desert wastes, by the mountain side, and in the lonely glen, has pursued his victims, until the crack of the rifle and the death yell proclaimed that another red skin had been sent to his final account, and sated with blood the vengeance of his pursuer. Porter has not passed through all these perilous scenes unscathed.
